Acapulco About to Leave San Francisco for Panama When She Slowly Carcens and Sinks to the Bottom of the Harbor—Only Part of the Main Deck and the Superstructure Are Showing Above the Water.

San Francisco, Aug. 26.—The steamer Acapulco, which was to have sailed for Panama to-day at 1 o'clock, turned turtle and is lying at the bottom of the bay alongside the Pacific Mail dock, with only part of her main deck and superstructure showing above water. The 230 people she had on board escaped to the wharf.

At 12:30 o'clock most of the passengers were aboard and many friends were on the deck and in the cabins bidding them farewell, when the boat began listing to starboard. Its coal was being loaded into the hold. The motion was not noticed at first, but as soon as the crew realized it, the passengers were warned to get on deck as quickly as possible.

Panic Among Passengers.
Then, before they had time to obey, the ship began to go down heavily on the starboard side, throwing many to the deck. The water began pouring into the open portholes, and then followed a panic among the passengers to get on the main deck and over the side. The crew worked at the gangways, keeping order, and before the ship got over on her side the passengers were all out and safe on the dock.

It seems that the cause of the disaster was gross carelessness. The vessel was overloaded, and the crew left portholes open, so she filled, careened, and sank. She can be raised in three or four days.

ADEE TWENTY MINUTES LATE.

That's Twelve Hundred Seconds,
Which Is Something Awful.

There was consternation for a time at the State Department yesterday morning. The hour of 9 o'clock had arrived, and Acting Secretary Adee was not at his desk. Ordinarily he is as regular as the time ball above the Navy Department, and the clerks set their watches by him. Mr. Adee was twenty minutes late, for the first time in years, and explained upon his arrival—although it was not necessary for him to explain to any one—that he had been indisposed.

He managed, however, to transact the business of the department yesterday. His illness is not serious, and he will not go to Muldoon's, although it is probable that he will be obliged to forego for a few days his usual exercise of bicycling and canoeing. While Mr. Adee is always prompt in getting to the State Department, he is not always as prompt in leaving, frequently remaining at his desk attending to official business until long after the clerks have left.

GIVE UP HOPE FOR MINERS.

Relatives of Entombed Men Forsake
Places at Mouth of Shaft.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Aug. 26.—Some of the relatives of the four men who have now been entombed in the Pennsylvania Coal Company's No. 14 colliery for one hundred hours, to-day gave up hope of their being reached alive, and this afternoon were not at their accustomed posts near the mouth of the shaft waiting for news.

Officials of the company, who have been tireless in their efforts to reach the men, say they still have a little hope that the men are alive, but that the chances of their having survived are against them. Eighty men were working to-day, driving passageways from two directions toward the spot where the entombed men are, but their progress is slow.

So extensive was the fall of rock which entombed the men that miners are not risking any predictions as to when they will be reached.

TAFT AT SPRINGFIELD.

Reiterates His Columbus Speech Before
Crowd of 15,000 People.

Springfield, Mo., Aug. 26.—Secretary of War Taft addressed 15,000 persons in Central Park, this city, to-night, the largest political gathering in Southeastern Missouri's history, after which he attended a banquet.

Among the speakers were National Committeeman Thomas J. Adkins, St. Louis; Walter H. Dickey, Kansas City, and John E. Woodruff, Springfield. Before leaving for Kansas City to-morrow morning, Taft will be driven to the National Cemetery over the national boulevard, for which a $30,000 appropriation is sought from Congress.

Taft reiterated his Columbus (Ohio) speech here.

MOB BENT ON LYNCHING.

Starts on Trail of Tramp Who Attacked Little Girl.

Gary, Ind., Aug. 26.—Two hundred men, swearing vengeance against the murderer of little Ella Schrader, who was found fearfully lacerated in the outskirts of this city and died twenty minutes later, are to-night on the trail of a tramp, and if he is found there will be a lynching before morning.

The child, seven years of age, was found by the roadside by workmen about 9:30 this morning, where she had crawled from a clump of bushes a few yards distant. She was sobbing piteously, and said she was playing by the roadside, when a man grabbed her, placed his hand over her mouth, and carried her into the woods.

The workmen started with her to a physician's office, but they had gone but a few rods when she died. The alarm was sounded, and men gathered from all parts of the city and assembled in the public square. The story of the child, repeated from lip to lip, caused intense excitement, and two hundred men were soon on the trail of the fiend.

KILLS ATTENDANT WITH ACID.

Insane Woman Breaks Manacles and Pours Poison in Man's Face.

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 26.—Jay Gallogly, attendant at the Bailey Sanitarium, died to-day from the effects of carbolic acid thrown in his face last night while he slept near Irene Nickel, an insane patient.

The woman had been kept handcuffed because of her frenzies, but she secured her freedom in some way, and took the acid from the medical chest. Gaining entrance to the man's room, she threw a large quantity in his eyes, nostrils, and mouth. He died in great agony.

The woman had an insane delusion that Gallogly had been trying to kill her relatives.

Follow Him in Month.

Special to The Washington Herald.

Rossmore, Va., Aug. 26.—Mrs. P. L. Kennedy, organist at the Second Presbyterian Church, this city, was married to-day to James A. Finley, of London, England. The marriage was a surprise.

Mr. Finley, who is a merchant in London, left at once for England, and will be followed in a month by his bride.

BROOKLYN YARD INSPECTED.

Naval Committee Will Conclude Its Labors in Boston.

New York, Aug. 26.—The Brooklyn Navy Yard was inspected by the Naval Affairs Committee of Congress to-day, of which George E. Foss, of Chicago, is chairman. The committee left Washington on Wednesday, and will end their tour of inspection at Boston.

When they have completed this tour they will have visited every naval station from Norfolk to Boston.

Asheville, N. C., Aug. 26.—James Linton Shipp, a prominent manufacturer of Thomasville, Ga., got Bernard M. Wood, a particular friend, to steal Miss Sadie Bowman Shotwell, a popular young society girl of New Orleans, from her bride.

Wood went to the residence of Miss Bowman, on Chestnut street, and got the girl away under pretense of going out to see some friends. Miss Shotwell and Shipp had been engaged for some time, but the woman's parents opposed it, saying she was too young. She was sent to Asheville and put under the care of her aunt here.

Shipp followed. He wired for Bernard Wood to come to Asheville. As soon as Wood had gotten Miss Shotwell away from her aunt's home there was a race to the Episcopal parsonage on Church street, where Rev. W. J. McCready and the bridegroom were waiting. Wood went back after the ceremony had been performed, and told the girl's aunt what had happened.

Mr. and Mrs. Shipp left immediately after the ceremony for Atlanta.

SEARCH EXHAUSTS CAMPERS

School-teacher Last Seen as She

Strange Woman Reported Wandering on a Lonely Road.

Lake Hopatcong, N. J., Aug. 26.—It is hoped that a valuable clue has been discovered in the search for Agnes Maguire, the young Brooklyn school-teacher who has been missing since Saturday night. Peter Doyle, an employee of an ice company, who has his plant some two miles down the lake, declares that he saw a woman walking on a deserted road early Sunday morning.

Constantine Christie has gone to question Doyle as to the description of the woman, and it is believed that this lead may develop something.

A reward has been offered for the missing girl, but no amount is mentioned in the paper which has been circulated about the country. The girl is described as having no coat or hat, being of light complexion, with brown hair and blue eyes.

The theory that she fell into the lake and was drowned was not generally believed, because the lake at this point is shallow and there would hardly be enough water to drown a person 350 feet from the bank. On the other hand, the woods about this place are composed of a dense underbrush and a second growth of timber which would make it possible for one who did not know the locality to wander around for days without finding a habitation.

Search Exhausts Hunters.

There are many houses and camps along the shore of the lake, but these do not extend into the hills. The fact that searchers have worked without result for almost forty-eight hours, proves little, because of the miles and miles of undergrowth that they have been unable to penetrate.

TRIES TO PASS THE LINES

Revenue-cutter Service Commander

Handled Roughly When He Tries to Force His Way Through Files of Military Students—Drill Given by Visiting Organization in White Lot.

Angered over what they termed a violation of one of the sacred customs of their calling, a number of the visiting cadets from the Culver Military Academy engaged in actual conflict with one of Uncle Sam's officers last night, which placed the visitors on record in this city as being strong defenders of military regulations.

The conflict occurred shortly after 11 o'clock when the cadets were marching in files of two through the side entrance of the Ebbitt House, having just returned from the theater. About half the number had entered the hotel when a stranger pushed his way by one of the passing cadet officers and attempted to force himself through the file. Immediately the cadets who witnessed the affair became angered over what they claimed was an unwarranted violation of all military discipline, and rushed to resent the act.

Police Quell Disorder.

The intruder of the ranks, who was Capt. Worth G. Ross, of the United States Revenue-cutter Service, was handled roughly for a time, until several policemen, who noticed the disorder, hurried to straighten out matters. Capt. Ross seemed very wrought up over the treatment he received at the hands of the "play soldiers," and for a time it looked as if the hostilities would be renewed. The cadets, however, continued their marching into the building, and before any further attempts to break through their ranks had been made, all were on the way to the rooms.

by Relative of Senator Allison,

New York, Aug. 26.—W. C. Allison, first president of the Carnegie Trust Company, and a relative of Senator Allison, of Iowa, this afternoon laid claim to the $43,000 in stock certificates and two bank books showing deposits of $2,000 in the name of Jane Colbin Allison, which came into possession of the police last night through Chris Connell, proprietor of the Hotel Amherst, who said they had been entrusted to him by a guest who registered as John Lukes, of Chicago.

Allison said the valuables were in his pocket Friday afternoon, when he believed he was given knock-out drops. He remembers nothing since that time until last night, when he woke up at the Waldorf-Astoria. Officers are now looking for Lukes, as Allison says $50 in money he had is missing.

Lukes is said to have taken a drunken man to his room from where the stranger was ejected. He called in Connell and gave him the securities, saying he had met a man in the saloon who said he got them as a result of a burglary. Lukes insisted he had got the man drunk and taken them away, bringing the "robber" to the hotel, intending to call a policeman.

While Connell was trying to get a policeman Lukes disappeared. Now the search for him will be taken up.

BLONDIN NOT DEAD.

Wire Walker Who Crossed Niagara

Falls Living Like Hermit.

Waterbury, Conn., Aug. 26.—Charles Blondin, the once famous tight-wire walker, who made the perilous trip across Niagara Falls, is said to be living the life of a hermit in West Cheshire, though rumor had it that he died ten years ago in London.

Blondin, who is working as a carpenter on odd jobs and going under the name of Michael Todd, is said to have been recognized by an old circus performer named Abe Totten. Blondin, when found by his old comrade, said:

"Yes, I know they think me dead, and perhaps I had better be dead. I made money fast and spent it faster in the maddening pleasures of life, and I certainly have felt the need and the value of money since. My oldest son knows where I am. He is with Whitney's circus in the West."

PLEADS FOR HER CHAUFFEUR.

Mrs. Marshall Field Appears in Boston Police Court.

Boston, Aug. 26.—Mrs. Marshall Field, widow of the Chicago multi-millionaire, from whom she inherited $26,000,000, braved the motley Monday throng in police court to-day, to intercede for her chauffeur, Willett Dewey, who was arrested last week for not showing his automobile number. In answer to her pleas, the judge ordered an immediate hearing for Dewey. He pleaded guilty, and Mrs. Field paid his fine of $10.

Dewey's case would not have been heard until to-morrow in the ordinary course of events, and Mrs. Field told the court that she was anxious to leave Boston as soon as possible.

GAYNOR TO LEAVE PRISON.

Effort to Save His Life.

Macon, Ga., Aug. 26.—Attorney General Bonaparte has signed an order permitting the removal of John P. Gaynor from the Bibb County jail to Indian Springs, Ga., a health resort, in the hope that Gaynor's life may be saved.

Gaynor suffers from asthma, and was lately stricken with locomotor ataxia. United States Deputy Marshal Riley, Mrs. Gaynor, and a physician will accompany the prisoner.

Benjamin Greene, who was convicted with Gaynor of complicity in the Savannah Harbor frauds, will remain in jail here. The case of Gaynor and Greene has been appealed to the United States Supreme Court.

However, Marshal Judkins says it is only a precaution, and is done to provide for the increase in business incident to the serving of many papers growing out of the railroad litigation.

PARKER SCORES RADICALS

Objects to Centralization as Remedy for Corporation Abuses.

Address Is Made at the Opening of Annual Session of American

Bar Association.

Portland, Me., Aug. 26.—The annual convention of the American Bar Association, which will be followed immediately by that of the International Law Association, began here this morning.

Alton B. Parker, of New York, former Democratic candidate for President of the United States and president of the American Bar Association, opened the proceedings this morning with an address devoted mainly to a summary of the noteworthy changes in statutory law made by the State and by Congress within the last twelve months.

He argued that extreme caution should be observed in bringing about any delimitation of the rights of the States as expressly granted to them by the Constitution.

One of the most important matters which will be considered at the meetings will be the report of the standing committee on insurance law, to be presented to-morrow morning. It will be followed by a lively and lengthy discussion. This committee has under consideration a bill to safeguard the interests of life insurance companies and the policy-holders.

In the course of his address, Mr. Parker said:

"At a time when our prosperity seemed greatest and our enjoyment of the material things of life was most general, suddenly the righteous wrath of the people became stirred, and justly stirred, by the unwelcome discovery that at least some of the large fortunes had not been fairly gained. Revelation followed revelation in quick succession of transactions in the domain of high finance by which a few had been enabled to add to their store at the expense of the many."

"The demagogues of the country, seeing their opportunity, seized it. They filled the land with denunciation not only of those who had been wrongdoers, but of all corporate interests of every kind. It mattered not to them that the great trunk lines of railroads contributing so largely to the magnificent and uniform development of the country, and many other industries requiring large amounts of capital, could not have been built at all but for the device of the corporation."

"Remedies, of course, they proposed, for the politician cannot succeed by denunciation alone. Some of them, apparently oblivious of the fact that the powers conferred upon Congress by the Federal Constitution are enumerated powers, and that all other powers are by that instrument reserved to the States and to the people, professed to see in the assumption of Federal control of corporations the true remedy."

Gov. Swanson Sides with Director

General, According to Report.

Prince Wilhelm's Visit Brings

Trouble to a Crisis, and State Executive and Acting Head of Exposition Fail to Attend Function.

Special to The Washington Herald.

Jamestown Exposition, Aug. 26.—A social war involving prominent persons is in progress at the exposition, and its outcome is yet to be determined.

The coming of Prince Wilhelm hastened it to a climax, and was responsible for the appointment of Charles W. Kohlstaad, by Director General Barr, as social and diplomatic representative of Barr and the fair.

The lawn party tendered Prince Wilhelm by the exposition president, Harry St. George Tucker, and Mrs. Tucker was not attended by Gov. and Mrs. Swanson. The fete champetre was given in the New York State Building, when some would naturally suppose that it would be given in the Virginia Building at the time.

Neither did the Barrs attend the function given by President and Mrs. Tucker. They were not invited until the eleventh hour, and then on a personal request for invitations, to be used by the daughter of the director general and a friend who was visiting her. President Tucker attended the dinner given for the prince by Gov. and Mrs. Swanson at the Hotel Chamberlin, but Mrs. Tucker did not. Both were invited.

Put Blame on Tucker.

President Tucker, it has been complained, tried to make the social affairs of the exposition too personal and exclusive. Director General Barr thought so, too, hence the appointment of Kohlstaad.

Gov. Swanson, it is said, agrees with Barr. The governor and the director general were of the opinion that the interests of the exposition suffered. State commissioners to the exposition and hostesses at State buildings have also expressed dissatisfaction with the social recognition given them at the exposition.

Mr. Tucker is in Portland, Me., attending the meeting of the American Bar Association. In defense of his social policy it is stated that $20,000 of his wife's money has been spent in exposition entertaining that should have come from the exposition coffers. The exposition, it is said, has not spent one cent in entertaining. In addition, Mr. Tucker advanced $5,000 of his salary for this purpose.

Directors May Take Hand.

Barr and his friends take the position that President Tucker had no right to use the exposition for the promotion of his personal social affairs. The argument is made that Barr had no authority to appoint Kohlstaad to the position he did. The exposition directors will meet to-morrow, and it is likely that the war will be considered at their meeting.

SUSPECTED DEAD MAN ALIVE.

Hartje's Detective, Reading Obituary, Proves He Is Not Suicide.

Pittsburg, Pa., Aug. 26.—A sensational Hartje story was spoiled here to-day when Detective John A. Anderson, who was supposed to be on a slab in the morgue, called in person and denied that he was dead.

An unknown man was found dead yesterday, having killed himself with carbolic acid, and the story was at once started that it was John A. Anderson, one of the Hartje detectives who had stolen the so-called Madeline love letters, and who is now under indictment.

The story, which was printed widely, was that Anderson, filled with remorse for his work against Mrs. Mary Scott Hartje, had killed himself. The Hartje detective read his own obituary in the papers and then showed up.

ACTOR IN REAL TRAGEDY.

Kills Companion and Then Ends His Own Life.

Chicago, Aug. 26.—Charles Andrews, forty years old, an actor, of South Bend, Ind., shot and instantly killed his supposed wife, an actress, and then committed suicide in their apartment in the Saratoga Hotel to-day. The sound of the shots was the signal for a panic among the guests of the hotel and excitement among the pedestrians who filled the street in front of the building.

One theory of the police was that the woman was not the wife of Andrews, but some one with whom he had eloped. When found she had two bullet wounds in her breast. Andrews shot himself in the head and died while on the way to St. Luke's Hospital in an ambulance.

MORGAN TO TAKE BOND ISSUE.

New York, Aug. 26.—The financial world was keenly interested in two reports concerning the same subject to-day. The first was an official announcement that the city, on September 10, would offer for sale $40,000,000 of city bonds—the biggest sale in the municipal history at the advanced interest rate of 4½ per cent. The second was a report on the stock exchange that J. P. Morgan & Co. were forming a syndicate to subscribe for this entire issue.

While the Morgan report could not be confirmed, it was said in reliable quarters that there was some reason to believe that it was true.
